The feature is a simple, one room prairie school. This school was seen from the road only. Wood shakes over wood sheathing cover much of the roof. Several areas have no shakes left. There is metal capping at the top and at 3 of the four peaks that go out to the four corners of the roof. A newer chimney of concrete blocks can be seen on the south slope of the roof.

There is a wide, header board under the eaves on all four side of the school. 6 inch wood lap siding with 4 inch wood corner trim. Much of the paint is gone. The north side of the building has a large door, most likely used for storage.

Some windows can be seen, starting with two windows that face east. An outer windows covering appears to have started falling away from the frame. I wonder if more windows might have been along this side but it is not readily apparent from a distance. On the west wall there is a covered opening that was most likely another window. On the south side there is an old wood door with transom space above it. Either side of the door are covered opening which I think were windows. They have decorative moulding at the top.

Electricity was present at some time in the past as indicated by the meter and wires near the southwest corner of the front of the school.
