This feature is a very tired building. It is a wood framed prairie school, moved to this location. The roof of the school and the entry is covered with wood shakes. There is not a chimney. There is wide, composite lap siding on the bulding. I only observed this building from the highway. The double hung windows, two west and two east with a small one to the south in the entry all appear to have intact glass. The bulidng appears to be tipping to the east and I learned from a neighbor that it will soon be torn down.
