1. Feature Description, Integrity, Eligibility:

This one-room prairie school is a typical prairie school. It is rectangular in shape and that has been extended by a small entry on the west side of the school and another addition to the back or east side of the school. Perhaps the east addition was for fuel storage or a fuel oil barrel. The stovepipe that can be seen on the north side of the building is attached to an old stove that was used to burn debris inside the school. They did not trust the old chimney. Today there is not a chimney on the building. There is a plywood door into the west entry and the building is locked. The west end has one boarded up window near the north side. There is also a small window on the north wall of the entry. No windows on the north side of the main part of the school. The east shed is the width of the school building and I see a boarded up door as well as a window to the east and another to the south. The main body of the school has 6 boarded up windows on the south side. The walls are wood lap siding with 1x4 trim boards at all corners. The paint is in fair shape with some peeling. The roof was leaking so the owner replaced it with asphalt shingles. He did not reroof the cupola as I see wood shingles on that. The cupola has four wooden legs and they are wrapped in metal where they meet the roof.

I was unable to get inside the school but have learned that the leaking roof was causing the plaster to fall in so they essentially gutter the interior of the school. They removed the buckling floor as well. The entry was a protection from the northwest wind. Inside the main body of the school, on either side as you step in, there were chemical toilets in cubicles. I suspect that there was also room for coats and etc.

This school was moved to its present location in 1912 or 1913.
