This one room prairie school sits on a farm site in Westford Township, behind storage/implement buildings. It is a small building measuring 18 feet north to south and 14 feet east to west. There are two windows on the east and two windows on the west, all covered with plywood. Roofing material is shakes with a metal ridge cap running the length of the roof. There is a chimney at the north end of the building and the brick are in pretty good shape. The siding is 6 inch lap with a side trim board running just under the roof overhang at the north and south sides of the school. 6 inch trim boards cover finish the corners. The building was moved in and placed on concrete blocks. There is a concrete block for a step into the building. The wood door was standing open. The building is used for storage as evidenced by the piles of stuff all over the floor. I did not go into the building. The floor is hard wood tongue and groove with late and plaster on the walls. The ceiling has sheetrock ceiling tile looking material. Near the door are electrical wires and there are electric outlet inside the school.
