[2023] Feature 1 description from the 2011 site form does not need updates. However, a determination of eligibility was not included at that time.

This building does not retain integrity of location, setting, feeling, or association because it has been moved. Research in 2011 and again in 2023 has been unable to determine the original location of the school. As noted in 2011, a place where a bell tower might have sat is visible on the western roof. Holes have appeared in the roof as well. Much of the integrity of design, materials, and workmanship has also not been retained due to the removal of the bell tower and the general deterioration of the structure. For these reasons it is recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

5. Summary of ALL Site Features and Evaluation of Significance:

Feature 1 was previously recorded as part of the North Dakota Country Schoolhouse Project in 2011. Because the previous location cannot be determined and the current state of the building is in poor condition it has been recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

An additional 14 structures were identified at the location of the schoolhouse and added to the site form. All of the additional structures are of common style and are in poor condition due to lack of use and the periodic flooding from the nearby slough. They have all been recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

This school building is in the Sverdrup School District, on a farmsite. I have no idea where it came from, have not been able to talk with anyone who has knowledge of the school. I was able to get closer to the school in the winter when the water froze up near the school. There is a huge slough to the east of the school and the water was around the building the summer of 2011. I see the outside walls are horizontal, wood siding and the hip roof is covered with asphalt shingles. There is a metal chimney in the southeast corner of the roof. The east side of the building has 6 windows, appear to be tall, double hung windows. Also on the east side there is a sliding door for access to that building for equipment. I could not see the north side of the building. The west side of the building has the entry. There is a door into an entry that has a window facing to the south. there is a decorative, half circle opening above the door and it is boarded shut. It looks like there was a bell tower on top of the entry at some point, it shows the base. I am not sure what is to the north of the main body of the school, perhaps an addition at some point or just a difference in the roof like. I see wires for electricity but have no idea of the building had electricity when it was operating as a school.
