Supplemental Information:

The initial survey assumed that the construction of this school house occurred sometime after July 22, 1940 (when the property was given to the Estes School District No. 17). However, county records accessed at the Superintendent of Rural Schools in the McKenzie County Courthouse and Township Maps located in the State Archives at the State Heritage Center of North Dakota indicate that a school house was existent in this exact township, range, and section as early as 1914. The 1930 McKenzie County School House Map indicates that as of 1930 this school was known as the Greene School in the Estes Township. Even though evidence of a school house presence predicated the initial survey assumption by 26 years it is impossible to determine if the documented building was in existence prior to 1940. Records also indicate that this was the only school house in operation in the Estes township from 1914 until present (2010). A survey conducted on August 7, 2010 discovered that this structure is no longer existent and any trace has been completely removed and covered with fields for the farming of crops.
